In Putnam as canvassers who will leave with them applications to be used by persons who desire to become electors. In Putnam as well as in other Windham county towns political leaders are alive to the fact that women are to play an important part in elections held hereafter and with the astuteness that they must possess to be successful in their party endeavors they are planning to get the women to become voters and, of course, if possible, to enroll on one or the other caucus lists. The republicans of towns in that section of Windham county seem to be more alive to the possibilities of additional strength for their party that may be drawn from among the women voters than do the democrats, and they are preparing in a comprehensive way to bring as large a percentage of women as pussible into the party fold.
